1. Thus was heard by me. At one time the venerable Sariputta was dwelling in Savatthi at Jeta's Grove, Anathapindika's Park.

2. At that time, such a form of evil entrenchment in view had arisen for a bhikkhu named Yamaka thus: "As I understand the Dhamma taught by the Auspicious One, from the breakup of the body, a bhikkhu with asavas extincted becomes annihilated and destroyed and does not exist after death."

3. Many bhikkhus heard, apparently, such a form of evil entrenchment in view has arisen for a bhikkhu named Yamaka thus: "As I understand the Dhamma taught by the Auspicious One, from the breakup of the body, a bhikkhu with asavas extincted becomes annihilated and destroyed and does not exist after death."

4. So then, those bhikkhus went to the venerable Yamaka. Upon arrival, they exchanged friendly greetings with the venerable Yamaka. Having exchanged friendly greetings and cordial talk, they sat down to one side. Having sat down to one side, those bhikkhus said this to the venerable Yamaka: "Is it true as reported, for you O friend Yamaka, such a form of evil entrenchment in view has arisen thus: "As I understand the Dhamma taught by the Auspicious One, from the breakup of the body, a

5. Yes, O friends. "As I understand the Dhamma taught by the Auspicious One, from the breakup of the body, a bhikkhu with asavas extincted becomes annihilated and destroyed and does not exist after death."

6. Do not say so, O friend Yamaka, to misrepresent the Auspicious One. Indeed, the misrepresentation of the Auspicious One is not good. The Auspicious One would certainly not say thus: "From the breakup of the body, a bhikkhu with asavas extincted becomes annihilated and destroyed and does not exist after death."

7. Even [while] those bhikkhus were saying thus, the venerable Yamaka still obstinately adhered to [and] expressed that same evil entrenchment in view: "As I understand the Dhamma taught by the Auspicious One, from the breakup of the body, a bhikkhu with asavas extincted becomes annihilated and destroyed and does not exist after death."

8. Since those bhikkhus were unable to detach the venerable Yamaka from this evil entrenchment in view, having risen up from their seats, they went to the venerable Sariputta. Upon arrival, they said this to the venerable Sariputta. O friend Sariputta, an evil entrenchment in is suffering. That which is suffering has ceased, that has disappeared. Consciousness is impermanent, that which is impermanent is suffering. That which is suffering has ceased, that has disappeared. Thus asked, O friend, I would answer thus.

43. Good good, friend Yamaka. If that is so, O friend Yamaka, I will make a simile for you for this meaning to be understood even more.

44. Just as, O friend Yamaka, a head of household or head of household's son, wealthy, having great riches, one endowed with great wealth and protection, just for him some man might arise, one who wishes his harm, one who wishes his ruin, one who wishes for his danger, one who wishes to deprive him of life. It occurs to him thus: "This head of household or head of household's son is wealthy, having great riches, one endowed with great wealth and protection. To forcibly deprive him of life cannot be easily done. What if, having intruded [unsuspectedly], I might deprive him of life?". Having approached that head of household or head of household's son, he might say thus: "I would attend on you, sir.". Then he would attend on this head of household or head of household's son. As an attendant, he would wait on him, getting up before him, retiring after him, obedient in his service, pleasing in his conduct, endearing in his speech.

When, O friend, it occurs to the man thus: "Dismiss this head of household or head of household's son of mine altogether." Then having found out he has gone to a lonely place, he would deprive him of life with a sharp knife.

46. So what do you think, O friend Yamaka? When that man, having approached the head of household or head of household's son, had said thus: "I would attend on you, sir," even then he was just a murderer, and yet did he not understand the murderer to be: "my murderer?" Also when he would wait on him, getting up before him, retiring after him, obedient in his service, pleasing in his conduct, endearing in his speech, even then he was just a murderer, and yet did he not understand the murderer to be: "my murderer?" Also when, for him having found out he has gone to lonely place, he deprived him of life with a sharp knife, even then he was just a murderer, and yet did he not understand the murderer to be: "my murderer?" "Yes, friend."
